Through this policy, we intend to provide you with some information on the technology adopted and how it is used on our website. Some important aspects to understand about the use of this technology are summarised below.

What are cookies?

Like almost all websites, we use small data files, which are stored on your computer, tablet, mobile phone or other mobile device (collectively referred to as "device") to record certain data each time you access or interact with our websites, services, apps, messaging systems and tools.

The specific names and types of cookies used may change over time. To help you better understand the regulations and the use of cookies, here are some terms with their definitions:

Cookie: small text files (usually in the form of letters and numbers) which are stored in the browser memory of the device when you visit a website or view a message. Cookies allow a website to recognise a particular device or browser. There are different types of cookies:
- temporary (or session): they are used to store temporary information, allow you to link your actions during that specific session and are removed from the computer when Internet Explorer is closed;
- permanent (or saved): they are used to store information, e.g. the login name and password, so the user does not have to re-enter them every time he/she visits a specific website; they remain stored on the computer even after closing Internet Explorer;
- first-party: they derive from the website displayed and can be permanent or temporary; they can be used to store information that will be reused on the next visit to the website;
- third-party: they derive from advertisements from other websites, such as pop-ups or advertising banners, present on the website displayed; they can be used to record the use of the website for marketing purposes.

Cookies can be disabled or removed using the tools available in most browsers. Cookie preferences must be set separately for each browser used because each of them offers specific features and options.

You can block, delete or disable them if your device allows it. You can manage cookies and cookie preferences in your device or browser settings.

Thanks to these functions, we can, for example, identify users who access our websites or monitor their preferences, interests or previously viewed objects, in order to improve the presentation of content on our websites.
